

PSSSST...

Once you're past security, you can buy and take on board what you like! This is the time to get sun cream and other goodies at duty free prices!

ays pack my cosmetics in a plastic bag, but you'll still need for any liquids into a security and resealable plastic container at port! I pack all mine at the top of age, so I can get to them easily. ight before you go de-clutter ke-up bag. If you're only and luggage, do you really need cks? Also a 250ml ith 100ml of liquid ot pass security! otte should e no larger an 100ml.

Patsy's travel tips

MY TRAVEL LUST-HAVES

These cute kits contain all that you need to give yourself a mini pampering.

FIRST CLASS

Molton Brown Women's Carry-on - The Flight Collection, £40

This also comes with a handy clear security bag.

ECONOMY

Soap and Glory Clean Getaway Gift, £10

The hand cream is a long-haul flight essential.

BEAUTY INSIDER

last year. I loved it because it gave my skin masses of coverage, but didn't look heavy, which is unusual for TV make-up! My friend and beauty guru, Moiya Saint, told me you can get a similar kit to use at home. At £199, the Airbase system isn't cheap, but if

When I appeared on Loose Women the make-up artist used an amazing airbrush foundation system. Apparently all the panellists are fans, and it was used on The X Factor you want something that gives your skin incredible coverage, it's worth the investment. I've tried it. It feels like silk, but covers every little flaw and can even disguise tattoos.

● Visit airbasemakeup.com for more information.